COLONIAL THEATRE.

Tom Moore and Alice Joyce in Two Reel "Dance of Death," Kalem.

Everybody remembers the wonderfully mystifying and enthralling picture. The Vampire and its passionate Vampire dance, executed by a couple famous the world over. Today its companion two reel story entitled The Dance of Death, with Tom Moore and Alice Joyce will be shown at the Colonial. Featured in the powerful dance is Mile. Verna Mersereau, the very cultured classic dancer from the Parisian Cafe Dansanteeff. This dance is the talk of the country, and the patrons of the Colonial are promised today, a rare terpsichorean treat. The story revolves about this cance of the South Sea Islands, and to see Tom Moore as a romantic lover in these islands is a novelty, while pretty Alice Joyce will be shown again today, and are full of him and go, and all seaf full of

POETRY HYMN.

A creedless love that knows no clan. No caste, no class, no cult but man: That deems today and now and here Are voice and vision of the seer; That through this lifted human clod The inflow of the breath of God Still sheds its apostolic powers; Such faith, such hope, such love be ours.

We think man climbs an endless slope Toward far-seen tablelands of hope; That he through filth and shame of sin Still seeks the God who speaks within; That all the years since time began Work the eternal rise of Man; And all the days that time shall see Tend toward the Eden yet to be.

Too long our music-hungering needs Have heard the fron clash of creeds. The creedless love that knows no clan. No caste, no class, no cult but man. Shall onward move as moves the sun. And blend all hearts and faiths in one. Such love with all its quickening pow-
